

One good place to start our Tiny Apologetics Tour is with

THE EXISTENCE OF GOD.

We can show that belief in God is not irrational or for the weak-minded. One way (there are more than a dozen other very good ways you can read about) is to show skeptics evidence from the Biggest Picture of them all, the whole Shebang, the one, the only - THE UNIVERSE.

Everywhere we look nowadays, from the complexity and fine-tuning of the atom to the industrial strength of the cell, from the intricacies of the human body to the beautiful biosphere of this Planet, from our perfect place in the solar system, to the gift that is our galaxy, (wait, I have to breathe... OK, ready) to the farthest reaches of the universe and everywhere and everything in between, there is evidence of

DESIGN

There isn't a discipline in the sciences from astronomy to zoology that isn't inundated with facts that support the idea that Someone has monkeyed with it all, that there is an Intelligent Designer. This place ain't no accident! Can and will people deny the conclusion that a Supreme Being did it all even when presented with "mountains of evidence"? Sure. Despite all the evidence, there are still those who believe the world is flat or that the Holocaust never happened or that we never went to the Moon or that vegetables are good for you.

There are lots of good books (some listed in the back!) which can help you show them TRUCKLOADS of evidence and different classic arguments. Now here's a question for you: Can you 1) show them any of the many evidences for a God and then 2) show them that this Supreme Being is the God of the Bible?

After all, many religions besides Christianity believe in some force behind it all, some Creator sorta Guy. How is our faith any different? You should know! Which brings up the next common issue..
